TONOPAH VINDICATED.

THE action of the jury in returning a verdict against John Panser is a declaration to the world that Tonopah is not going to stand for gun plays in any shape or under any provocation. This is timely notice to all gun toters that they are not wanted here in a peaceful community and if they persist in inflicting their presence on a tolerant public they will eventually find themselves doing service for the public weal in a uniform more befitting than the under the red flag they so ardently espouse.

With this example before them the officers of the law have no further excuse for paltering with the subject of carrying arms or concealed weapons. Life and property should be safe enough in Tonopah under the law and the officers should immediately proceed to clean up the town by driving out all offenders against the ordinance prohibiting the carrying of concealed weapons. It is up to them to make a riddance of the entire bunch whose chief is now a convicted felon in the Nye county jail. The Bonanza has urged this course before and now takes occasion to emphasize the necessity for cleaning up the town and thus serving notice on all that the climate is not compatible with the physical requirements of those who think they cannot exist without having a gun stuck under their waistband.

The thanks of the good people of Tonopah are due the twelve men who affirmed the convictions of a majority of the population that the law is plenty good enough to cover all emergencies and that citizens of all shades of politics are willing to let the courts settle their grievances. Such prompt decision is the best rejoinder to demands for summary reprisals and the lesson will not be lost on citizens who will feel confident they may safely rely on the courts for redress under all circumstances.

To the state and the rest of the country Tonopah has served notice that there is no sympathy for the revolutionary doctrines of the I. W. W. among the citizens of Tonopah who have no use for the lawless sentiments that would substitute the bullet for the ballot.

VALUE OF TRAINED DIPLOMATS.

A YOUNG American enters Annapolis or West Point with the intention of devoting his life to the army or naval service of his country and with the hope of becoming an admiral or a general. The same method should be followed in developing diplomats. While amateurs sometimes succeed in competition with professionals in various walks of life, the professional nevertheless has a great advantage over the amateur and will give better service as a rule. An ambassador or minister at a foreign court is engaged in transacting business of a complicated character for his country, but according to Mr. Gould's statements, the United States does not supply its representatives with the means of transacting such business efficiently. It will not even spend the requisite amount of money for cable tolls and often leaves its diplomatic and consular service in utter ignorance of important developments at Washington.

Under a former administration the department of state made a ruling which virtually changed the position of certain great business interests. In this specific instance, Mr. Gould says, $160,000,000 was at stake and American business men at a certain foreign capital went to the American ambassador and asked him for details regarding the change. He had not been advised on the subject and he cabled Washington for instructions, but got none. For three days he cabled Washington at his own expense, but the department of state would not spend the small sum of ten dollars in cable tolls to tell him where he stood. The matter was urgent and he was forced to humiliate himself by going to the foreign office of the country to which he was ambassador and asking the officials to tell him what his own government had done. He got the information in that way and was able to save American business men from serious losses, but it was five months before the information reached him through the circumlocution office of our department of state in its official form. It was a vivid picture of how not to do things.

POWER OF MONEY.

ROTHSCHILD holds the balance of power in the impending conflict and it remains to be seen if that powerful house will exercise its old prerogative of saying whether or not war shall be declared. These days God is not always on the side of the biggest guns, as Napoleon once said, for there is every reason for believing that the man with the purse strings holds the right of veto. Of all the nations sparring for place in the international struggle, France is the best situated so far as money goes. Her people may be relied on to come forward with the funds when patriotism prompts them to dig down in their jeans for the love of country.

In the report of yesterday there is one great object lesson standing out which should impress the Democratic administration with the value of fostering domestic shipbuilding. While the German flyer, the President Grant, was ordered back to her dock to await further orders the Paris, one of the few transatlantic steamers under the American flag, went forth with $11,000,000 in gold stowed away in her strong boxes for delivery to European bankers. The Paris is safe from molestation on the high seas and the underwriters are not fretting themselves over the possibility of the treasure ship being captured before she reaches her destination. Unfortunately there are not enough carriers under the American flag to ameliorate the stringent situation on the Atlantic, and the consequence is likely to be that pangs of hunger will soon follow in the wake of a declaration of war and the farmers of the United States, with bursting bins and congested elevators, will see their crops ruined for want of ocean carriers. This strange anomaly of a surfeit of food on one side of the ocean and famine on the other may be witnessed for the first time in the history of the world. But, as Uncle Remus said, the sun do move and we are promised some most spectacular departures from all previous wars. The air will be filled with ships and surface conveyors will have to reckon closely on the approach of these winged monsters. New high powered explosives, wireless ignition, submarine attacks and other scientific developments, kept close secrets in the inner arena of every modern war office, will be brought into play for the first time. The situation surpasses the power of the most vivid imagination to grasp and the world may stand aghast at the horrors prepared for the demonstration of General Grant's remarks that war is akin to Gehenna.

The Harrington Light Artillery is said to be divided between offering its services to Serbia or Ireland. Either case they would fight for freedom, but Tonopah has a sneaking suspicion that the bunch would be found on the Old Dart.

Elko has a woman going around with a 44 and wearing men's clothes and loaded with morphine. This sounds like the entering wedge of militancy in Nevada.

Having reconstructed the map of Mexico by abolishing the side lines of revolution it is now up to the tripartite alliance to dispose of the European situation.

Washoe county is making a good start with business men favored for all offices from sheriff down to constable.

The Laird of Skibo should introduce the Scotch Borderers to the Peace Foundation in Ireland.

The dogs of war have treed the dove of peace somewhere in the vicinity of Vienna.

IRISH QUESTION PUT OVER UNTIL THE WAR CEASES

COUNTRY IN TOO CRITICAL SHAPE TO PROVOKE FRESH TROUBLE IN IRELAND.

LONDON, August 1.—Premier Asquith, when announcing to the house of commons yesterday the postponement of the second reading of the bill to amend the Irish home rule bill, said:

"We meet today under conditions of gravity which are almost unparalleled in the presence of any one of us."

"The issues of peace and war are hanging in the balance and with us in the risk of a catastrophe of which it is impossible to measure either the dimensions or the effects."

"In these circumstances it is of vital importance in the interests of the whole world that this country, which has no interests of its own directly at stake, should present a united front and be able to speak and act with authority as an undivided nation."

"If we were to proceed today with the amending bill, we should inevitably—unless the debate were conducted in an artificial tone—be involved in an acute controversy in regard to domestic differences, whose importance to ourselves none is disposed to belittle."

"I need not say more than that such a use of our time at such a moment may have an injurious and lastingly injurious effect on the international situation."

"Mr. Bonar, law leader of the opposition, shares to the full the views I have expressed. We, therefore, propose to postpone for the present the second reading of the amending bill without prejudice to its future, in the hope that by the postponement of this discussion the patriotism of all parties will contribute to what lies in our power if not to avert, to at least circumscribe—the calamity which threatens the whole world."

PERFORATED NICKELS FOR FRENCH CIRCULATION

(By Associated Press.) PARIS, August 1.—The first of the new perforated nickel coins have just been struck at the Paris mint under the supervision of the designer, Henri Lindauer, and from now on no more copper money will be minted. The passing of the traditional sou will, however, be slow.
